

MGM Agrees to Pay Las Vegas Shooting Victims Up to $800-Million to Avoid Having to Go to Trial and Being Required to Give Testimony

written by GEG | October 7, 2019

MGM, the owner of Mandalay Bay Hotel where Paddock committed the crime, has agreed to pay up to $800-million to settle lawsuits, although it is unclear why the hotel is liable. The most significant aspect of this settlement is that it will protect MGM from further investigation arising from these law suits.

New Mysteries Emerge from Las Vegas Mass Shooting

written by GEG | October 7, 2019

DEAD, 400+ INJURED IN LAS VEGAS SHOOTING

Las Vegas: A casino security expert questions where the 40-member SWAT Team was during the event. The city provided a lawyer with the special event permit from the city for the outdoor concert that was filled out by hand by a Mandalay Bay corporate executive, instead of the producer of the event that took place across the street from the hotel. Two Mandalay Bay Hotel workers filmed themselves during the shooting, lockdown and evacuation.